LONDON. April 20.-THE SUN COFrespondent at Constantinople telegraphed this morning that he passed through the lines there yesterday and returned to-day, having seen the army from Salonica, where it was waiting to advance nearer to the city. He says it made a fresh advance this morning and was then within three miles of the walls of Stamboul.

Sandansky, the leader of the Bulgarian brigands who in 1901 captured the American missionary, Miss Stone, is in the first line with a band of 500 Bulgarians. He is employed by the Turkish officers as a screen to intercept and drive off reactionary hodjas (teachers of the Koran) from Constantinople who might try to reach the troops for the purpose of undermining their loyalty.

The Bulgarians were boasting that they would dethrone the Sultan, and the Turkish officers with whom the correspondent spoke supported this assertion, though they said they would have to proceed cautiously because of the grave danger attendant upon such action. Probably, they said, the abdication of the Sultan would be demanded after a consti tutional cabinet had been reestablished unless in the meantime the Sultan should flee the city

ST. PETERSBURG, April 20.-The city of Tabriz, Persia, is in dire straits. The inhabitants are unable to procure food and are starving. Some have already died of hunger and many are dying.

The consulates are threatened by a mob, who seem bent on killing the ponsuls for the purpose of compelling foreign intervention to relieve the misery. The Russian residents are assembled in their consulate, which is especially threatened, it being known that 1,000,000 rubles ($500,000) belonging to the closed Russian bank is stored there. The foreigners in the place, who num-

PRINCETON GRADUATES HONOR THE MAYOR OF NEW YORK.

Woodrow Wilson Showers Verbal Boquets on the Chief Guest and the Mayor Tells How Much the College Helped

Princeton alumni, from the class of '53 down to the youngest living graduate, met in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria last night to do honor to Mayor McClellan, also George B. McClellan, '86, and also Prof. McClellan, lecturer on public law at Princeton. The Mayor took all these parts gracefully and bore up as best he might under the mass of verbal bouquets which President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton and the other speakers heaped upon him.

It was an all Princeton affair and the second of its kind ever given in New York More than 400 alumni sat down under the orange and black, which was in evidence everywhere; and when they began to resurrect the class yells of bygone days there was noise enough to please even Big Bill Edwards, who led the cheering. Festoons of the Nassau colors hung from all the boxes and were massed behind the speakers' table, above which was displayed the arms of the city of New York missioner Nicholas J.
